

PRATT INTEGRATIVE COURSES

Pratt Integrative Courses (PICs) are designed as interdisciplinary explorations of a wide range of possible content, putting into practice multiple ways of thinking and ways of making. Students will acquire and integrate skills and competencies from both studio and general education classes, recombining them in novel and unexpected ways that test, challenge, and expand their creative/critical capacities. The PICs constitute an integrative opportunity in students' overall Pratt learning experience, an engagement in a cross-disciplinary and collaborative environment that can also nourish their future work in their majors and the capstone projects related to their disciplines.

PICs are required for all undergraduates in the School of Art and the School of Design, plus BFA students in the History of Art and Design program and in the Writing program (School of Liberal Arts and Sciences).

Students do not have to take a particular Pratt Integrative Course. Every semester, over 20 PICs are offered. Students can select any PIC from a menu of offerings for their required PIC. Students across the institute can also choose to take PICs with their all-institute electives.
