

PSYCHOLOGY, MINOR

Psychology is a study of human mental processes, emotions, behaviors, and activities. The goal of the Psychology Minor at Pratt is to provide students with a deep grounding in diverse theoretical perspectives and a working understanding of empirical research methodologies in order to scaffold creative, critical, and psychologically mindful processes of artistic production, design, urban planning, and architecture. This minor can be combined with any undergraduate major and requires the completion of 15 credits.

Minor Coordinator

Martin Dege
mdege@pratt.edu
718.230.6834

Code	Title	Credits
Required Courses
SS-210	General Psychology	3
or SSWI-210T	General Psychology
SS-430	Methods Of Cultural Analysis	3
Electives
Select nine credits in total from menus A and B:		9
Menu A
SS-211	Social Psychology
SS-232	Freud and Beyond: Psychoanalysis Psychoanalysis
SS-351	Abnormal Psychology
SS-357	Psychology of Gender/Sex Roles
SS-359	Cognitive Psychology
SS-367	Cultural Psychology
SS-391	Child And Adolescent Development
SS-418	The Psychology of Everyday Life
SSWI-220T	Personality, Self, Identity: Who Am I Really?
Menu B
HMS-330A	Topics in Literary/Cultural Theory: Freud and Lacan
FVID-350	Dreams, Memories & Hallucinations
INT-342	Time Culture Context
PHIL-355	Theories of Knowledge
HMS-430D	Psychoanalysis and Art
SS-336	The Interpretation of Dreams
SS-369	Perception And Creativity
SS-358	Environmental Psychology
Total Credits		15